

Desert Sage Fourth Grade

Mandarin Learning in Action

Reading: This week we will recognize characteristics of diaries and autobiographical fiction, make predictions, analyze literary elements and language, and identify first person point of view.

Writing: This week students will begin drafting an opinion essay about challenges.

Social Studies: We will be describing where the Mogollon lived, foods that were hunted and gathered, how they constructed homes, how pottery was made, and how they traded.

Science: This week students will learn how to analyze and interpret environmental data to demonstrate that species either adapt and survive, or go extinct over time.

Math: We will be continue learning about division of Thousands, Hundreds, Tens, and Ones.

Mandarin: We will be working on an artistic Mandarin group project by using characters and sentences from Intermediate 1 unit 2.
