

This & That

Week of September 7, 2020

Happy Friday everyone!! We are finishing up our 5th week of learning. I am wondering where the time is going? We have a long weekend coming up and my family and I are getting a chance to go out of town with some close friends of ours. I am looking forward to peace and quiet...however I am taking my kids with me, so I doubt there will be much peace or quiet, but there will be a lot of fun. I truly hope you will have some time this weekend to reset and enjoy the time with your family. Here are a few things for this upcoming week.

1. No School Monday
2. Tuesday's math – There is a mid-module assessment on Tuesday in math. Please have your child wait to complete it until after the Tuesday's zoom meeting. We will be spending that time to review the concepts we have been working on so they are fresh in their minds for that assessment.
3. Our wonderful PTSO has been hard at work trying to plan fundraisers for our school since this year will be so different from how we fundraised in the past. These are listed in the calendar on the PTSO website. You can see all of the things PTSO is working on at

4. Canvas – Some students are reporting to me that they are completing their work but the “mark done” button is not registering that they completed the task. If this is the case for you and your child has completed the work already, they do not need to go through all of the videos a second time. They can just press “mark done” and it should go through. If this is a constant problem, please let me know.
5. Socials Studies this week – Your child will be working on social studies this week. Please be sure to click on Week 4: (August 24-28th). I know this is confusing, but I am not able to change the button names that the district put into the canvas pages. There is no science published this week.
